Days To Celebrate: A Full Year Of Poetry, People, Holidays, History, Fascinating Facts, And More

Synopsis

In Days to Celebrate Lee Bennett Hopkins has collected an astounding array of information to show us that each day of the year gives us a reason to celebrate. For every month he has compiled a calendar of birthdays, holidays, historic events, inventions, world records, thrilling firsts, and more. And for every month he has selected surprising poems in honor of some of the people and events commemorated in the calendar. There are poems about the seasons and holidays, of course, but there are also poems about a "Flying-Man" (for February 4, Charles Lindbergh's birthday), birds (for April 26, John James Audubon's birthday), windshield wipers (patented November 10), and earmuffs (patented December 21). Beloved poets, such as Walt Whitman, Langston Hughes, Gwendolyn Brooks, and Christina Rossetti, are joined by new voices in sixty poems that take us on a remarkable journey through a year -- and through the years. Stephen Alcorn's illustrations, based on the style of art found in old almanacs, are airy, whimsical, and thought provoking. They perfectly match the breadth and depth of this volume. Brilliantly conceived and elegantly illustrated, Days to Celebrate is a book that pays tribute to the people, events, and poetry that make up our past and will inspire our future.

I enjoy browsing through DAYS TO CELEBRATE. The book is divided into twelve "monthly" sections. Each month has a calendar full of facts both poetry and non-poetry related. Each month's flower, birth stone, and zodiac sign are given. Within each month's section there are four to seven poems related to that month in some way. (It might be a holiday of that month. It might be the poet's birthday month. It might be a historical event being celebrated, etc.) My favorite poem, by the way, is Arithmetic by Carl Sandberg.

My 11 year old Son has enjoyed this book, finding poetry he was interested in has been a challenge but this format (he loves the calendars!) has been a success! The book is really lovely but also informative and colorful, I'm so glad we purchased the book and once again Lee Bennett Hopkins delivers for us! Highly recommended to other Home School Mom's!

What I like about this book is:> beautiful illustrations!> calendars of birth dates/death dates/important dates> some memorable pieces> poems throughout the year> poems may coordinate with other things kids are learning about What I don't like: Too many pieces are just too who-cares-y. Still and all, it is a BEAUTIFUL book and would make a great teacher gift. There are neat poems celebrating Martin Luther King, Jr, Ben Franklin, Chinese New Year, Marian Anderson, Harriet Tubman, Babe Zaharias, the Statue of Liberty. So this book would be a good tie in for lessons about MLK and Civil Rights, the Underground Railroad, and Women's rights, among other things.

Much fun, diverse and varied.

I bought this book for my Niece to read and discuss with her son when he gets a little older. I like to buy my Great Nephew a book for each Holiday every year.
